Protest Hangings At Service In N.Y.

Forty young men and women took over a room at the British Consulate at 25 Broadway, New York, for almost an hour and a half, held a memorial service in the consulate to protest the hanging of Dov Bela Gruner and three others in Palestine, and left only after twenty-seven policemen arrived to arrest them.

The group said they were members of the Brith Trumpeldor Organization of America, Inc., 55 West Forty-second Street, but were acting individually, not for the organization. One of the group was Louis Binder, a member of the crew of the ship Ben Hecht, which ran displaced persons from Europe to Palestine and arrived in New York last week.

Acting as spokesman, Hyman Robert Levitan, 27 years old, of 3510 Fourteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, said the crew would risk the blockade again.

"From what we experienced on this voyage in saving the lives of our Ben Hecht passengers," Mr. Levitan declared, "we are determined to make the voyage again, again and again, despite British threats."

The group took over a room of the consulate, some sitting on desks and others on the floor. Prayers in the memorial service were offered in Hebrew and some of the men had traditional Jewish skull caps. Speeches were made denouncing British policy in Palestine. Sir Francis Evans, consul general, called the police after the delegation refused his request to leave either as a group or individually.

As the police arrived the group began to sing the American national anthem. Inspector Fox was [illegible] delegation for Sir Francis

Zionists Ask Seat At Sessions

The Jewish Agency for Palestine will ask the United Nations General Assembly to provide for the representation of Jews when the Assembly opens its special session on Palestine on April 28.

A demand that the United States support the inclusion of the Jewish Agency on the proposed committee of inquiry, if Great Britain and the Arabs are placed on it, was made public by the American Jewish Conference.

The Jewish Agency, which announced that it would ask the special session of the Assembly to approve an "open door" on Jewish immigration pending final settlement of the Palestine question, issued a statement condemning the "illegal" policy of Britain, which has held the mandate since 1922. The statement follows:

"The killing of two Jewish refugees seeking entry into Palestine on the ship Theodore Herzl and the execution of Dov Gruner and three others are new acts of cruelty that seem calculated to aggravate the already intolerable situation in Palestine. They furnish fresh evidence to the United Nations of the disastrous results which flow inevitably from the mandatory's illegal policy in Palestine."

In a letter to Dean Acheson, U.S. Acting Secretary of State, Louis Lipsky, chairman of the executive committee of the American Jewish Congress, emphasized that the members placed on the investigating committee would be of great importance, according to the New York Times. Mr. Lipsky emphasized that either all parties directly interested should be included, or none. He added:

"In the event of a decision that all parties directly concerned be included, the General Assembly should formulate its rules of pro-

2,000 DP March On Consulate

Two thousand Jewish displaced persons marched on the British consulate at Munich in a demonstration against the execution of Dov Bela Gruner and three other convicted Jewish terrorists in Palestine.

They also demonstrated in front of zone headquarters of the Jewish Central Committee because the committee had opposed marching on the consulate.

Shouting "Pfui, Bevin", and bearing banners in Hebrew and English, Jews from camps in and around Munich bore down on the consulate, according to reports from European command headquarters. They had decided at a meeting in Munich to defy the instructions of the Central Committee.

It was a revolt against the moderate leadership of David Graeger, chairman of the committee. Col. G. R. Scithers, United States Army liaison officer with the committee, reported it had done everything in its power to prevent the demonstration in violation of Army regulations limiting such actions to the confines of the camps.

Army officials feared the revolt was likely to spread to other centers of Jewish displaced persons.

Another group of some 500 met in a theatre to commemorate the fourth anniversary of the Warsaw ghetto massacre. The Central Committee, which sponsored the ceremonies proclaimed it a day of national mourning.

In the main demonstration before the consulate, the banners were inscribed "Down with British hangmen in Palestine," "Long live President Truman, defender of justice" and "Long live independent Palestine."

A delegation of five presented a declaration along these lines to a British consular official. The [illegible] ...rned to the States military police and German police were on hand throughout, but there was no violence.

The demonstration apparently was prepared before the announcement by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States Military Governor, closing displaced person camps to further Jewish refugees infiltrating from Poland. The United States action was nonetheless known to have aroused intense resentment among some Jews.

Top representatives of the American-Jewish Joint Distribution Committee were called to Paris for a conference.

Rabbi Philip Bernstein, adviser on Jewish affairs to the European commander, departed for the United States several days ago, immediately after a cable from the State Department was received at Frankfurt headquarters ordering the camps closed to new refugees.

Bars U.S. Zone As Haven

Gen. Lucius D. Clay barred "new applicants"—meaning Jewish persons from Poland — from admission to displaced persons camps in the United States zone beginning April 21.

The decision, described by high Army officials as the "most momentous in the history of displaced persons," almost completely reversed the previous United States policy of making the zone a haven for persecuted persons.

It was ordered by the State Department, these officials said. They interpreted it as a concession to the British desire to limit immigration pressure on Palestine.

"The borders of the zone will not be closed to infiltrees," General Clay said, "but new arrivals will receive no further care by the United States from its funds. They may, if they choose, make their own way in the German economy."

He added that in cases of hardship due to illness or unemployment exceptional admission to camps would still be possible with the approval of the European Command.

General Clay said a similar measure had been in effect in their British zone since last July.

A European Command announcement explained that the aim was to stabilize and reduce the numbers of displaced persons so that the problem would be within the capacity of the International Refugee Organization when it took over from the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Appeal To U.N. For Open Palestine

The Jewish Agency for Palestine appealed to the United Nations to recommend that Great Britain reopen the Holy Land to immediate Jewish immigration pending a decision on a long-term solution of the Palestine problem.

The agency also called on the General Assembly to recommend during its forthcoming special session on Palestine that Britain remove during the interim period "existing measures of racial discrimination" that restrict the sale of land to Jews in 94 per cent of the country, says the New York Herald Tribune.

The request to the U. N. was made in the form of a statement, issued by the American section of the Agency Executive headed by Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver and declared that such an interim decision is dictated by "every consideration of humanity and international law."

In an obvious reference to the British position, as expressed by their U. N. delegation at Lake Success, N.Y., that Britain's request for U. N. consideration of Palestine does not automatically commit it to acceptance of whatever the Assembly decides, the statement said:

"Such an interim decision would serve as an immediate test of the significance of the forthcoming session. It would make it clear that no power can manipulate the General Assembly of the U.N. for the purpores of dilatory maneuver, accepting or rejecting its findings as it pleases. It would dispel the fears that the reference of the problem to the U. N. is likely to lead to an indefinite delay of its solution".

T... pointed out that it ... previous interna... the ... tage ...on of the Jewish people with Palestine and their right to reconstitute their national homeland there were recognized.

It said one of the last acts of the League's permanent mandates commission was its rejection, as inconsistent with the Palestine mandate, of the British "White Paper" of 1939 that restricted Jewish immigration.

"Great Britain's violation of the mandate," the agency said, "was allowed to continue without authoritative international challenge only because the League ceased to function and there was no international forum to which the Jewish people could turn for redress. Most of the nations now in the U. N., as members of the League, were parties to the covenant with the Jewish people. The Jewish people look to the U. N., as trustee of the world's conscience, to maintain the integrity of that undertaking."

The Jewish people now in camps in Germany, Austria and in Cyprus, and behind barbed wire in Palestine itself, the statement said, "are on the brink of despair." Further delay in reopening Palestine to large-scale immigration may mean a new catastrophe for a people that suffered as no other in the war. "It is imperative that the General Assembly act quickly and firmly."

In conclusion, the Agency noted that both the Arab world and Great Britain are formally represented in the U. N. and that the Jewish people, without such representation, are approaching the special session of the Assembly under a great disadvantage.

The Agency said that so far it has made no request to the Assembly to permit it to represent the Jewish viewpoint, although Secretary General Trygve Lie said that if it wanted such representation it might appeal to the Assembly for it.

Zionist strategy for the session has been entrusted by the Jewish Agency Executive in Jerusalem to its American section, and delegates now stationed in New York, besides Rabbi Silver, are Dr. Nahum Goldman, Dr. Emanuel Neumann, Mrs. Rose Halperin, Rabbi Wolf Gold, Haim Greenberg, editor of "The Jewish Frontier," and Moshe Shertok. It is understood that David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Executive in Palestine, will come from Jerusalem "if unusual developments arise."

The Agency said that the appeal to the U. N. for an interim decision at the special Assembly session was approved by the American section leaders at a meeting.

The Agency statement carefully avoided setting any figure of immi-

15,000 Register To Return To Poland

A most significant reversal in the migrating tendencies of Polish Jews, huge numbers of whom illegally left their native land because of anti-Semitism and assumed the status of displaced persons in Germany, was disclosed at Berlin by Polish and Jewish officials.

According to the Polish Consul more than 15,000 Jews in the American zone are preparing to return home. This figure is disputed by Jewish sources, however, they worriedly confirmed the fact that despairing Jews were "talking" of returning home. A Jewish Telegraphic Agency dispatch from Warsaw asserted that 15,000 Polish Jews in the American zone had registered for repatriation.

The admission that some Jews are ready to call quits to their abortive attempts to reach Palestine or the United States marks a new low in Jewish leaders' outlook, reports the New York Times. That a Jewish news agency carried the dispatch with the categorical statement of the registration figure is considered little short of sensational in view of the Zionists' efforts.

However, a Jewish immigration official said that as early as last February, at the Paris conference, he heard of Polish Jews turning back home. If nothing is done on the Palestine situation before fall the "tendency" will probably develop into a mass trek. One thing is certain, he declared: "The Jews will not spend another winter in Germany."

Jewish leaders emphasized that it was not homesickness that impelled Polish Jews to look back to

Says Religion Must Be Rooted In Labor

Collective human rights must replace individual rights either of labor or management if economic stability is to be achieved, George F. Kohn, a Philadelphia manufacturer, said in Chicago, Ill., at an Institute of Judaism, Management and Labor, set up by the Reform Rabbinate.

Mr. Kohn, a member of the labor-management committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, declared that the current conflict between labor and management seriously threatened the system which not only has made America great but was also the source of individual liberties.

"If this conflict continues and increases in intensity," he said, "it will be necessary to legislate the terms under which both labor and management operate. Government will become an increasingly large factor in our industrial economy by regulating wages, production or profits. Once Government is the determining factor in any one of the three legs of the stool, it must support the stool by controlling the other two legs. There cannot be partial controls which will stop at any given terminal point."

Observing that unless labor and management resolved their own difficulties, "Government by force might develop," Mr. Kohn declared. "Under such a system minorities do not fare well."

He said there was no doubt "that there are some on management's side who would use our Congress to pass representative laws which would give them the advantage they once had."

"But it is wrong to judge a group by its exceptions," he added.

Zionist Delegation To Cabinet Foregoes Jewish State For Immigration In Palestine

Calling upon the Canadian Government to support the submission of the Jewish Agency for Palestine to the special session of the United Nations Assembly scheduled to meet on April 28 to deal with the Palestine problem, a delegation of representatives of the Zionist Organizations in Canada and of the Canadian Palestine Committee met with members of the Cabinet in Ottawa on Friday, April 18. Presiding at this meeting was the Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Acting Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs. Other Cabinet Ministers attending were: Paul Martin, Ernest Bertrand, J. A. MacKinnon, Brooke Claxton, L. P. Pearson, Under Secretary of External Affairs, who will head the Canadian delegation to the United Nations Assembly, was present. Moshe Shertok, of the Executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, accompanied the Zionist delegation.

On behalf of the United Zionist Council of Canada representing all Zionist organizations in the country and the Canadian Palestine Committee, S. J. Zacks, president of the Council submitted a brief which emphasized the following points: The interest of Canada in the Palestine problem in view of the fact that, as a member of the League of Nations, Canada was one of those to which the Mandatory Government has been answerable for the administration of its trust in Palestine. By her participation in the United Nations, Canada is concerned with those obligations which have been carried forward, more especially as they relate to world peace. Immigration restrictions in other parts of the world make the opening of the doors of Palestine a matter of great humanitarian urgency. A member of the British Commonwealth and a good neighbour of the United States of America, Canada is injured by developments that lead to Anglo-American friction. As an interpreter of one to the other, Canada has a significant role in promoting understanding between the British Commonwealth and the United States.

The brief called upon the Government of Canada to exercise its [illegible] influence in [illegible] taken with respect to Palestine and to press at the present time for an immediate and substantial increase in Jewish immigration to Palestine in view of the plight of hundreds of thousand of hapless Jews.

Mr. Shertok explained the status of the Jewish Agency. He emphasized that cooperation between Jews and Great Britain was difficult as long as the 1939 White Paper remained in force. "We are prepared to accept the status quo that existed prior to the issuance of the White Paper provided Great Britain recognized the right of settlement of Jews in all parts of Palestine; such settlement will not harm any single Arab or Jew already in the land. We are prepared to forego, at the present time, consideration of the question of a Jewish state on condition that the right of Jewish people to uninterrupted immigration and wide settlement in Palestine be safeguarded", said Mr. Shertok.

He emphasized the fact that Jewish Palestine is the one progressive point in all of the Near East and that Palestine is surrounded by Arab countries that are still feudal in their entire economy and social life. He hoped that the Canadian Government would use its influence that the Jewish Agency be given an opportunity to voice its views in the special U. N. Assembly.

Mr. Mowat, Secretary of the Canadian Palestine Committee, stressed the point that the Zionist movement has, at all times, condemned terrorism. Dean K. C. Evans, of Christ Church Cathedral, in Montreal, supported the views expressed and added that the policy of Canada was not that of the British Foreign Office but involved Canada's direct participation in the United Nations' solution of a prob-

Don Graham Comments on EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

My neighbor John Williams was talking the other day about how important our export trade is to us.

"You know, Don," he said, "a lot of Canadians don't realize what it means to have world markets for our grain and hogs. But history shows now that not even the strongest countries can get along without selling to others."

Well, I agreed with John all right, but I reminded him it isn't only a matter of produce like grain and hogs. Especially to us, the things called "invisible" exports like the tourist trade and life insurance are vital too.

Did you know that about 40 per cent of all the life insurance with Canadian companies has been sold to people outside Canada — in 64 other countries? No other country "exports" that much life insurance. Our companies must be pretty famous for their efficiency and their safety.

Life Insurance is a business built for everybody, a great enterprise which protects the future of more than four million policyholders and their loved ones. Life Insurance offers a system

Mr. and Mrs. David Bloom, 892 Avenue Road, announce the marriage of their daughter, Gloria, to Jack Wolstoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Wolstoff, of Brooklyn, N.Y., which took place on Friday, April 4, in New York.

She wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with lace, fashioned with a high round neckline with lace yoke, long dolman sleeves of lace, and full skirt, with draped apron effect in front and bustle back, sweeping into a short train. Her full-length lace veil was arranged with a Victorian headdress, and she carried a white Bible, decorated with orchids and satin streamers. Miss Pearl Nesker, who attended the bride as maid of honour, wore an off-the-shoulder gown of coral-coloured satin, with a headdress of Talisman roses, and matching nosegay. Evelyn Gottlieb and Ethel Gladstone, as junior bridesmaids, were gowned alike in pale blue moire taffeta, designed with hoop skirts and bustle backs, with matching headdresses of pale blue flowers, and carried nosegays of pink roses. Brenda Nesker, the flower girl, was dressed in pink moire, with a matching off the-face bonnet, trimmed with pale blue flowers, and she carried a white basket of rose petals. Harry Freedman, brother of the groom, attended him as best man, and the ushers were: Allen Lindenbaum, Marvin Freedman, Harold Gladstone, Norman Bensky, Harry Nesker, Hardy Nesker, Sidney Gladstone, Albert Rayman, Ruben Fenwick, Samuel Zolt, Harvey Flodder, and Max Greenspan. Bryan Zolt, who acted as ring-bearer, wore a full dress suit and top hat, and carried the ring on a white satin quilted cushion, trimmed with satin ribbon and streamers. A dinner followed in the reception hall of the synagogue. The bride's mother, Mrs. Gladstone, received, wearing a dinner gown of [illegible] with cap sleeves, trimmed with rhinestones, and a corsage of deep red roses. The Palestine Medical School, Newest Development Of The Hebrew University

Ground has been broken for the Biology Building, the first structure of the projected Medical School on Mt. Scopus in Jerusalem, and the cornerstone will be laid this spring, Sir Leon Simon, C. B., Chairman of the Executive Council of the Hebrew University, declared in New York.

Sir Leon and Lady Simon were in the United States to stimulate interest in the $4,000,000 campaign to establish the first Medical School in Palestine, the Hebrew University and Hadassah Medical School, throughout March, when the Board of Governors of the University convened in New York, its first meeting in the United States.

"The Medical School will open its doors in the fall of 1948," he said, "just thirty years after the laying of the foundation stones of the Hebrew University itself on Mt. Scopus, a beautiful site overlooking the city which has played so important a part in the spiritual history of mankind. It is appropriate to recall now that the first purchase of land for the University was made possible by a group of medical men in this country, the American Jewish Physicians Committee."

This addition to the University, Sir Leon pointed out, "will make a further contribution to healing and health among the Jewish, Moslem and Christian peoples of the Near East, and we are confident that it will also play a part in the general advancement of medical science, a field in which the Jewish people has a great tradition. The Medical Research Center associated with the University and the Hadassah Hospital already has substantial achievements to its credit, and its development into a teaching Faculty of Medicine will in no way halt its research activities. On the contrary, teaching and research will go hand in hand and fructify one another."

"Faith in the future," he told this writer, "remains unshaken among the Jews in the Holy Land, and it finds expression today as always in solid, concrete achievement. Every institution in Palestine is going ahead on the assumption that the present difficulties will prove to be only temporary. That is why the Hebrew University can make large plans for the future, such as the establishment of a Medical School."

The first step in the development of the Medical School is the construction of buildings [illegible] for the medical subjects. Botany and so-

Dies At Age Of 114

Max (Mottel) Cohen, 114-year-old resident of the Beth Israel Home for the Aged in Denver and one-time messenger of Czar Nicholas I, died there.

Born in Russia, Mr. Cohen spent his youth transporting gold between cities for the Czar and became known as "Mottel the Messenger." With his wife and twelve children he fled Czarist persecution fifty years ago and migrated to Argentina, where he started farming in a settlement for Jewish refugees.

At the height of the Spanish-American War the Cohen family, their crops suffering from a grasshopper plague, sailed for New York. Mr. Cohen had been a resident of Denver since 1904 and entered the Beth Israel Home at the age of 100.

He retained an active interest in current events and was able to read a Yiddish newspaper without glasses. He was reputed never to have missed a day of prayer in the synagogue of the home. He liked to smoke a pipe, cigarettes and cigars and enjoyed a glass of beer, wine and "schnapps."

Mr. Cohen was also a steady purchaser of Irish Sweepstakes tickets and looked forward each year to the day when he would be the holder of the lucky number.

Surviving are a son, Mayer Cohen, of New York; a daughter, Mrs. Fannie Leiser, of Denver; twenty grandchildren, eighteen great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

PLAY BANNED IN PALESTINE

Ben Hecht's "A Flag Is Born" was banned in Palestine.

The Palestine Gazette announced that among the books prohibited by the chief press censor was the printed version of the American author's anti-British and pro-Zionist play that has been produced in New York. The order forbade the importation, exportation, printing or publication of the book in Palestine.

The book is published by the American League for a Free Palestine, the parent organization of the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation, which is allied with the underground Irgun Zvai Leumi, the military organization.

Among sixteen other publications banned was one called "British Atrocities in Palestine."

"CANADA GEESE" by T. M. Shortt, Ornithologist.

THE GUIDE—a Conservationist

The guide helps the cause of conservation by setting an example in obeying the game and forest laws—the laws of Nature and of Man.

Winging its way northward to spend the summer in the land of its birth, the Canada Goose presents a picture of strength and endurance. We can help the geese on their exhausting journeys by providing sanctuaries along the way, and by conscientiously observing the game laws.

"The conservation of nature implies simply the wise use of our natural resources. We of the present generation must guard against their misuse and thoughtless exploitation. Only in this way can we pass on to our successors any semblance of unspoiled nature."

THE PALESTINE MEDICAL SCHOOL

ology classes at present are taught in the same buildings which house the physics and chemistry facilities. Botany and zoology in the future will be offered in the Biology Building now under construction, with the result that all of these courses will be able to expand and accomodate a greater number of students.

The Biology Building, will be completed in about a year, and concurrently the Physics and Chemistry Buildings will be enlarged. The buildings which will house the purely medical subjects, such as anatomy and physiology, will be started later, and will be completed, according to the plan, by the time when medical students will be ready to undertake these subjects in the medical curriculum.

Sir Leon said that the Biology Building design competition demonstrated once again that the exiles from Europe who have contributed so much to Palestine in the past are still a potent factor in the development of that country. The winning design for the Biology Building was drawn by Joseph Klarwein, an architect from Germany who is at present lecturer at the Haifa Technical Institute, Mr. Klarwein is also supervising the construction of the building. His was one of thirty-six designs submitted in the competition.

The judges of the competition were: Richard Kauffmann, the architect who originally had drawn up the plan for the proposed University City on Mt. Scopus; Prof. Alexander Klein and Prof. Eugene Ratner, two Palestinian architects; Louis Green, an engineer of the Executive Council of the Hebrew University; and Prof. Andor Fodor, Dean of the Faculty of Science at the University.

Sir Leon believes firmly that the projected Medical School is a clear example of self-help, and that self-help is the most productive kind of help of all. He told this writer:

"The best kind of help is that which puts the recipient in a position to become independent and stand on his own feet. This is eminently true of the relationship between the scattered Jewish people and its national home in Palestine. In the nature of things, the upbuilding of Palestine had to be begun from outside. When the Zionist movement started, Palestine was a desert country, in the human as well as in the purely physical sense: it had no population capable of developing its possibilities. The men and the money needed for this purpose had to be supplied by world Jewry.

"But it is neither desirable nor possible for the national home to remain indefinitely in the position of a beneficiary, at any rate on the human side. It will need large capital investments from abroad for some time to come, but it must increasingly produce its leaders, its [illegible] and the professional [illegible] the kind of help that is really effective.

"One field in which Palestine has hitherto been conspicuously dependent on manpower from abroad is that of medical service. There are many excellent doctors in Palestine and the health service of Hadassah, and particularly its great hospital in Jerusalem, take very high rank among the achievements of our national rebirth; but no single doctor has ever yet received his training in Palestine. For a number of reasons, into which I need not enter here, this state of things cannot continue. In this sphere as in others, Palestine must be enabled to fend for itself in the not distant future. And that is the purpose of the projected University-Hadassah Medical School.

"Hadassah and the American Friends of the Hebrew University have undertaken to raise in America the capital sum required for the realization of this project. There could be no better way of giving expression to the determination of American Jewry to play its part in the creation of a healthy, vigorous and self-dependent Jewish life in Palestine."

JEWS ASK RIGHTS IN ITALY

Italian Jewry, asserting that Italy's proposed Constitution favored Roman Catholics, asked the Constituent Assembly to guarantee equal rights for all religions.

"We ask that it be recognized and state that the pre-eminence of the Catholic Church in Italy is only quantitative and not qualitative," the Union of Italian Israelite Communities said in a message to the Assembly.

Referring to a proposal to sanction the 1929 Lateran Pacts, which would compel Catholic religious instruction in public schools, the Jews said children of non-Catholics "found themselves in the schools in a position of inequality, inferiority and discomfort."

Sir Leon, as Chairman of the Executive Council of the Hebrew University, is the administrative head of the University. He is a scholar and an administrator who over a long period of years has been actively engaged in work for Zionism and Hebrew culture. After graduation from Oxford, he became a civil servant in the British Post Office in 1904. In 1931 he was appointed Director of Telegraphs and Telephones and in 1935 he became Director of Savings of the Post Office. A life-long Zionist, he was a member, with Chaim Weizmann, of the Zionist Commission to Palestine in 1918.

In the realm of scholarship, the world is indebted to Sir Leon for his translations from Hebrew into English of Ahad Ha'am's Essays. Palestine, and students of Hebrew throughout the world, are grateful to him for his translations into Hebrew of a number of Plato's Dialogues. He is also the editor of "Aspects of the Hebrew Genius" (1910), a joint editor of "Awakening Palestine" (1923), and author of "Studies in Hebrew Nationalism" (1920). He received the order of Companion of the Bath in 1931 and was knighted in 1944 after nearly forty years of Government service. In May, 1946, he took up his present post, that of Chairman of the Executive Council of the Hebrew University.

500 Sephardim Find Home In Rhodesia

Many Sephardic refugees, mainly from Rhodes, whose once famous and renowned community was totally destroyed by the Nazis, succeeded in finding shelter in Rhodesia, South Africa. At the beginning they shaped their spiritual [illegible] to serve as a center of Torah and immediately applied himself to the task of founding a Talmud Torah for the 70 children of the community who are now learning Hebrew and getting a religious education.

Dr. J. Rosin, a Sephardic friend, they obtained much assistance in achieving this purpose.

Due to the great enthusiasm of its members, numbering some 500 souls, this community is making continual progress. In 1944 they erected a center which serves as a synagogue and for social purposes as well. They are contemplating building a house of worship; the war prevented them from carrying this out as [illegible] final values and transient times to their children.

Their activities follow closely the pattern of the central community. In addition to their religious activities they engage in fund-raising on behalf of the victims of Nazi persecution, and they involve the women and the youth in the work of the community.

GILBERT-BACKMAN

The marriage of Doris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Backman, 4134 City Hall Avenue, to Michael Barry Gilbert, son of Mrs. A. Gilbert, 2827 Maplewood Avenue, took place at the home of Rev. H. Rotblatt. Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a pink crepe dress, cut with a jewel neckline, three-quarter-length balloon sleeves, and a draped bodice and skirt. She had a pink tulle headdress and veil, and carried a Bible, with purple orchids and streamers. Miss Sylvia Backman, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore a powder-blue dress, with a Chinese neckline, and dolman sleeves, and a matching headdress and veil, and carried a bouquet of roses. Humphrey Kassie, cousin of the groom, was best man. Mrs. Backman, mother of the bride, wore a grey dress, black hat, and corsage of Tea roses. Mrs. Gilbert, mother of the groom, wore a grey dress, brown hat, and a corsage of Tea roses. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in New York, the bride travelling in a black suit, and black accessories. They are living at 4134 City Hall Avenue. Mrs. Jack Gross, aunt of the groom, of Ottawa, Ont., was a wedding guest.

HANDS AT WORK...

LEARNING TO WELD

ONTARIO'S future prosperity depends directly on a sufficient volume of production to satisfy domestic needs and assure for Canada a pre-eminent place in the markets of the world. Take the metal trades for example . . . never before has the demand, both here and abroad, for the products of Ontario's metal industries been so great. Production must be increased . . . but to meet new production goals, skilled hands are needed. For them great opportunities lie ahead. Higher wages, job security, better working conditions are within easier reach of those who have mastered a skilled occupation.

Today, through the plan sponsored by the Department of Veterans' Affairs and other agencies, hundreds of young workers are being trained to meet the needs of the metal trades. Graduates of these rehabilitation courses are now ready to take their places in Ontario's industry. Available to you are veterans, well started on the road to skilled metal working trades such as tool making, blacksmithing, machine operation, iron working, pattern making, welding and forging. Seek them out with confidence. They are your future craftsmen.

CLASS IN COOKERY

RAISIN MARBLE CAKE

one-quarter pound butter
one glass of brown sugar
one tablespoon vanilla
flour
two eggs
four tablespoons cocoa two teaspoons baking powder
one and one-half glasses milk and sour cream mixed one-half glass raisins

Cream the butter and sugar, and add the vanilla. Mix well. Add the eggs. Sift together the flour and baking powder; add some to batter. Then add the milk and sour cream gradually, alternately with the rest of the flour. Use just enough flour so that the batter is nice and fluffy. Add the raisins, and mix thoroughly. Put one-half of the batter into cake pan, and to the other half, add the cocoa, and a little more sour cream and milk (just enough to make batter same consistency as before). Put this on top of the first half of batter, and bake in a four-hundred-degree oven for about twenty-five minutes.

lem which is international. M. J. Coldwell, leader of the C. C. F. Party, urged careful consideration of the brief submitted and expressed the hope that a solution would be found whereby the Jewish people would at least have a place that they could call their own. Rev. Daniel McIvor, M.P., spoke of the Jewish contribution to civilization and urged that the Government "sleep on and digest what had been said."

In his summation, Mr. St. Laurent stated that careful consideration would be given to the subject. It was his view that the United Nations meeting in April would have as its objective the preparation of an agreed statement of facts on the Palestine problem and he expressed the hope that when the General Assembly in September deals with this agreed statement of facts, an equitable solution will be found to the problem.

The following members of Parliament were present: M. J. Coldwell, Alistair Stewart, Daniel McIvor, Howard Winkler, and Senator Cairine Wilson.

In addition to those already mentioned, the following made up the Zionist delegation: Harry Batshaw, K.C., of Montreal; Edward E. Gelber, of Toronto; Lawrence Freiman, of Ottawa; and Rabbi Jesse Schwartz, of Montreal, for the Zionist Organization of Canada; Mrs. H. Singer, of Montreal, president of the Hadassah Organization of Canada; I. M. Bobrove, of Montreal, for the Actions Committee of the Labour Zionists of Canada; and Leon Petegorsky, for the Mizrachi Organization of Canada. Max Bookman acted as secretary of the Zionist delegation. Maurice Hartt, M.P., introduced the Zionist delegation to Mr. St. Laurent and the other Cabinet Ministers.

people in Palestine, namely, the Jewish Agency for Palestine, as a party directly concerned, to serve on the commission.

"In the event of a decision that all parties directly concerned be excluded, such a decision should apply not only to the Arab states which claim to be directly concerned. With regard to the mandatory power, we affirm that it has lost its standing as a trustee guarding the interest of others, that it is ruling Palestine under the White Paper of 1939, in utter disregard of the provisions of the mandate, and that it intends to continue to govern Palestine in violation of these provisions."

BARS U.S. ZONE

July 1. The United Nations group's budget of $160,000,000 for the first year was based on a world refugee population of 800,000, it said, but there are now 1,000,000 refugees receiving care.

As of March 15 there were 358,896 Jewish displaced persons in the United States zone, according to Army figures. Of these, 124,453 were living in displaced persons camps and the rest outside "in the German economy."

Army officials feared that extremist Jewish leaders would take a radical view of the new situation and that the truce that has prevailed between the Jewish displaced persons and the Army since last autumn would be broken by new incidents. That there are representatives of the Stern Gang and other violent groups among the Jews in Germany was not doubted.

Pressure brought by extremists thus far this spring has been limited to one orderly demonstration in all camps and the circulation of a rumor that Jews were about to embark to an extraordinary "crusade" in the direction of Palestine.

Two attempts to implement this plan have occurred. A group of 190 Jews aboard a chartered train without exit permits or visas was turned back from the French border several days ago and another group of eighty in trucks was halted at the Austrian border at about the same time.

SAYS RELIGION

Jewish industrialists, labor leaders, Government representatives and rabbis from all over the country participated in the services and in six round-table discussions.

Rabbi Julius Mark, of Nashville, Tenn., chairman of the Commission on Justice and Peace of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, sponsor of the institute, held that many of the labor-management difficulties might have been solved if the clergy "had been more concerned with the application of the teachings of religion to every human relationship." Regarding pending labor legislation, he warned that "mere passage of a law is no guarantee of the solution of the problems of human relations."

Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein, of K.A.M. Temple, Chicago, said:

"The synagogue and the temple are largely the institutions of middle-class Jewry. They both lack a base in labor. This is unfortunate, both for Judaism and for labor. A religion which does not have its roots in field and factory and in the hearts of those who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow, sooner or later becomes a cult."

The report to the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations by the committee appointed to study the Outremont School situation, of which Mrs. J. M. C. Duckworth is chairman, recommended that wide publicity be given to the facts concerning the education of Jewish children. In order to help to distribute the findings of the committee which are of such vital concern to all citizens and especially to the Jews, this column will present below a free running condensation of the report with the hope that each person who reads it will see that at least one other person who would not have access to it reads it, too.

In the municipality of Outremont, Quebec, a suburb of Montreal, there is no provision for the schooling of Jewish children after June, 1947. Forming over sixty-five percent of the pupils, they attend the Protestant Schools under a contract made in 1930 by the Outremont Protestant School Board and the Jewish Board of School Commissioners of Montreal, for fifteen years, to be automatically renewed for like periods unless ended on two years' notice by either party.

On June 26, 1943, a notice of the Board of School Trustees appeared in the Quebec Official Gazette, addressed to the Jewish School Commission, of the wish to terminate the contract on June 30, 1945. Eighteen months later a reporter, writing in the Montreal Gazette, drew attention to the notice but no notification was made to the Jewish Commission.

Since June, 1945, schooling has continued on a yearly basis. In 1945 Premier Duplessis requested the continuance under the contract for another year and, after wide publicity, a clause in a Bill required operation of the contract until July 1, 1947, during which time the Protestant Board and the Provincial Government were to arrive at a solution. Jewish delegations have not been received by the chairman of the Board or by any members and were informed that statements would be made through the press, and all negotiations would be between the Board and the Government.

The Committee of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations, appointed to study the school situation, was unsuccessful in its attempt to meet with the Board which refused the request for an interview on the grounds that the meeting was one of local concern; negotiations with the Government were in progress; nothing would be gained; so that the Committee was obliged to accept as the Board's views an advertisement in the Montreal press on June 29, 1945. This notice to citizens of Outremont disclaimed responsibility for the situation; denied that there was any intention to exclude the Jews from its schools; and said that the main problem was lack of funds. This advertisement appeared over the name of John F. Hoy, Chairman of the Board, after a meeting of Jews expressed their alarm.

Lack of funds was revealed to be an inadequate reason for terminating the school contract. In 1944-45, seventy-six percent of the total revenue collected through direct taxation was derived from Jewish property-owners and the Jewish school population was sixty-five percent of the total. In addition, the amount received by the Board from the Neutral Panel per Jewish child is greater than the amount per Protestant child. The law says that: "Each year, the difference, if any, between the amount paid to the Protestant Panel by property-owners of the Jewish faith and the cost per capita of the education of children of the Jewish faith shall be paid out of the funds of the Neutral Panel."

The Committee finds that revenues are insufficient; that there is a greater deficit per Protestant child than per Jewish child; that the exclusion of approximately two-thirds of the school population would increase the deficit. Outremont is not unique in financial troubles that beset educational institutions here. But the Board's method of trying to find a solution is unique in that they based it on the claim that a financial burden was created by Jewish children in particular, in order to bring pressure on the Government. This method victimizes the Jews.

The Committee accepts the statement made by the Board in its advertisement in the press that it did not intend to exclude Jewish children, since it is obvious that their elimination could only result in less education for Protestants, make it impossible to maintain the school buildings, require the dismissal of teachers, and close two out of three schools.

The wording of education statutes since 1846 shows that it was the intent of the legislators that all children should have equal rights and in particular the rights of minorities should be respected. Under the School Law of that year the Jews elected to pay into the Protestant Panel and were admitted to the schools.

The intent of the B.N.A. Act of 1867 was to protect the rights of minorities but today a literal interpretation leaves the Jews without basic educational rights. In 1885 it was the Protestant Board that suggested that Jews be considered as Protestants for purposes of education. In 1888, the Protestants, finding their finances in a critical state, proposed that the word "Protestant" should be taken to mean any persons not professing the Roman Catholic faith, to enable them to collect money from Jewish real estate and from the Neutral Panel.

In 1903 an amendment to the Quebec Education Act conferred on Jews the same rights as Protestants. In 1925 the Protestant Commissioners took the case to the Privy Council which ruled that the Act of 1903 was invalid. It did not enable Jews to be appointed to the Protestant School Board, or confer the right of attendance in schools; Jewish children in the province attend schools as of right in Montreal and Quebec City only. Elsewhere in the province they may as of right attend majority schools, usually Catholic, although tradition, practice, and choice link them with the Protestant schools.

The Privy Council pointed out that the Provincial Legislature is authorized to make new education laws and it ruled that separate schools for Jews could be established. In 1930 a Jewish School Commission was authorized to do this or to sign contracts with Protestant School Boards. A majority of Jewish citizens rejected the separate school system proposal because of their feeling against further separation of young Canadians, and the Jewish School Commissioners made contracts in 1930 with the Montreal and Outremont School Boards. Both contracts expired at the same time, both Boards have financial troubles, but only the Outremont Board chose to terminate the contract.

During the present school session the Board set up classes in such a way that, wherever possible, all Protestant children are in one room. Not only was this done within two schools but Protestant parents in a third school were given the opportunity of sending their children to another school where there were more Protestants to make up classes. The reasons given were that there would be no interruption in work due to Jewish holidays, that the other school was newer and better equipped. To the knowledge of the Committee's knowledge only about twenty percent of parents accepted this offer.

The Committee believes that the new policy is decidedly popular with the teachers in the Outremont Schools. They like mingling and see advantages in having children of different backgrounds together, besides the matter of teaching tolerance of others.

There are no Jewish teachers employed by the Outremont Board nor have there been for many years. Jewish teachers, properly qualified, have applied, none have been accepted, and in some cases applications have not been acknowledged. Interviews with parents, teachers and others showed the Committee that they agreed that teachers should be appointed on merit. Now Jewish teachers are filling other positions although there is a teacher shortage. Not employing them is discrimination against Jewish taxpayers, involving civil rights.

For the election of school boards in Quebec the only notice is posted on school doors. Only Protestant property-owners may vote or hold office as school trustees and they need not live in the municipality to vote there. Protestant tenants have no vote. Neither Jewish owners nor tenants have a vote. This acts to disenfranchise the owners of eighty-four percent of the value of the property taxable in support of the Protestant schools.

The Committee of the Home and School Associations recommends for immediate action the continued and uninterrupted education of Jewish children under a contract which at minimum provides that Jewish teachers be eligible and included; that there be no segregation of pupils; that an elected representative be a non-voting member of the School Board until a general solution is achieved; all this looking toward changes in the law that would eliminate the need for contractual agreements. For a full settlement the Committee recommends that the Federation of Home and School Associations commit itself to the establishment of common schools, to the election of school boards on the basis of adult franchise, and to work for a solution of providing sound finances.

Now, while the above gives the main structure of this able report of the Committee appointed to study the Outremont School situation, it would not be right or complete to leave it at that without trying to describe the fine, strong feeling which imbues certain parts of this liberal document on the side of justice and in fullest appreciation of the gravity of the situation under review.

The Committee is sorely troubled over the serious lack of legal rights of Jewish citizens to education, which confronts all others and raises the question of moral responsibility on the part of those holding power. It believes that Canadian children should not be faced with the serious threat of loss of school facilities.

The Committee was grieved to discover that a delegation of Protestant parents had gone to the School Board requesting separation of their children. It points out that in the common school system, which is the long-term objective, denominational religious instruction would be left to the Church and the Synagogue; that classroom discussion should be used to help children understand the meaning of each other's religious festivals; and that this can be done by Jewish as well as Protestant teachers, in the belief of Protestant ministers and parents who were interviewed.

The Committee is deeply concerned over the limited franchise in the election of the School Board, pointing out that the principle of control of education by property-owners is obsolete, and urges that in a community fully conscious of its social and moral responsibilities, social custom should compensate for narrow control imposed by the laws of another age. Until the law can be changed the Committee would like to see the Board invite representatives of different religious groups to attend meetings as an important contribution to the Board's understanding of the needs of all the people, and to make for better relations.

It takes a very serious view of the undesirable psychological effects of the situation on both groups of children, especially the insecurity which results from uncertainty in the minds of the Jewish children regarding their continued acceptance as equals in the eyes of the other children. The Committee is alarmed over the damage to the development of the Canadian citizen of tomorrow in segregation among children, the result of which is the growth of hostility into an overwhelming, unreasoning hatred in institutions which should be democratically conducted and controlled.

It lays stress on what is in keeping with the best trends of Christianity, showing an anxiety to apply religion directly to life for the benefit of all. The tenor of the report indicates that forces are gathering for changes. Such effort helps to break down prejudice and to ensure progress. It helps to crystallize thinking and feeling, with public expression of the desire for betterment. Some day, it means, things will be different and better. Right here.
